

Mailing components

Online e-mailing systems are widely used by companies today for communicating information (news, events, marketing material, etc.) with their customers, prospects and employees. With Xsdot's e-mailing system content managers can easily create and manage mailing documents and post them to individual users or user-groups. By combining several eMailing services (like registration, user-group and channel services) any eMailing system can be architected on the fly corresponding the business needs. Go to 'Xsdot Mailing system' for more information.
