

Variable group

A variable group component is the root element of a variable and attribute system. By defining variable groups, multiple variable and attribute systems can be created in a web application.

The customer or visitor can select the variable groups in the attribute drill down modules.

It contains two text input fields: one for 'variable group:' with the value 'Music variables', and one for 'description:' with the value 'Music variable and attributes definitions...'. The window is styled with a light gray border and a white background.
